8.4. Instructional Design For Distance Learning (An Activity Developed by Dr. Carla Lane)

The following is a new method devised to assist distance learning teachers plan the best type of teaching style to match the requirements of the objects and the technology used. For example: If students need to learn to work together as a group to accomplish a goal then look at the top 9 items of the chart, select people, then go down the chart-- you will notice that there are 4 checkmarks- perhaps you would want to do a video conference and have students break out into small group discussions.
